Meeting Santa still a magical moment for kids

He is able to tell whether a child has been good or bad all year, despite the fact that he lives at the North Pole.

He can bellow "ho, ho, ho" better than anyone around.

And he delivers millions of toys and other treats across the world in one night.

Santa Claus sure is a magical man.

And children throughout Lake County have had opportunities to meet him during the past few weeks.

A recent Kris Kringle stop took place at Santa's Enchanted Castle

Kathy

in Antioch.

Kids who got to visit with Father Christmas shared their holiday wishes with the bearded man.

Some interesting requests were received, including 7-year-old Alex Riedel's wish of getting a "Minnesota Vikings helmet, football pads and an Adrian Peterson jersey."

Even if Santa is a Chicago Bears fan, I hope that he considers the request that Alex made.

To read more about what area children want for Christmas, turn to page 3A of your Journal.

A story about the Santa's visit to the Enchanted Castle appears on the page.

There also is a photo poll about what kids want for Christmas.

More Hanukkah events are taking place in Lake County.

A menorah made of Legos will be lit at Gurnee Mills Mall at 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 21. Festivities at the mall will continue through Monday, Dec. 29.

For information about the celebration, turn to page 9A of your

Kids Hope United celebrates 60 years

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

Want to know more?

For more information about Kids Hope
United and the services it offers to children and families, visit www.kidshopeunited.org or call 847-245-6500.

Kids Hope United is a federation of agencies that spans four states, and serves more than 15,000 children and families each year.

The Lake Villa branch is located at 215 N.
Milwaukee Ave. in Lake Villa.

As the organization has grown, so have the number of services offered by Kids Hope United. In addition to its current residential care at the Lake Villa facilities, McHugh said, the group seeks to stop abuse and neglect of children, offers counseling services and helps place children with foster families.

Director of Development Joyce Heneberry said Kids Hope United's residential services are enhanced by the Lake Villa community.

"Sixty years in any one place is a very significant commitment to that one location," she said. "[Lake Villa] is a very peaceful place for children to be. And it's beauty is part of its therapy."

A chance to share memories

Ginny and Toby Palmer came to Kids Hope United after their house burned down and their mother was in a car accident. Following that traumatic experience, the Palmers and two other siblings began staying with the organization, which was then known as Central Baptist Children's Home.

While exploring their old home during last week's celebration, the two did not hesitate to call their time with the organization a positive one.

"The experience was just phenomenal," Ginny Palmer said. "I wish we could express the joy we feel."

She said she remembers riding the horses that stayed on the campus, and going into town to spend allowance money, which ranged from a quarter to 50 cents.

Toby Palmer said he remembers spending time in tree forts, building bikes in the bike shops and fishing in the creek, with a baseball bat no less.

"It wasn't just someplace where they kept you. You had a real normal lifestyle," he said. "It was like an orphanage that you see in the movies.
They cared a lot about us."

Heneberry said it was affirming to see former residents of the organization return with positive memories to share.

"There are things that change, and there are things that don't change," she said. "Providing hope for a safe and normal life is something that doesn't change."

Santa making residents of all ages smile

Area families flock to see St. Nick in hopes of bagging special gifts for the holidays

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Seeing the line of bundled-up children and parents braving the winter wind, one could be excused for thinking a famous dignitary or rock star was in town.

Actually, the anxious crowd was waiting for a chance to see someone who is a combination of both, and so much more.

The bearded, jolly fellow may be a far cry from Hannah Montana, but he sure can bring out the crowds.

“When she looks at Santa, it’s mystical,” said Ruann Barack of Antioch about her 5-year-old daughter, Hailey.

Barack and her daughter joined a throng of other families outside Santa’s Enchanted Castle in Antioch on Dec. 14 in hopes of getting some quality time with good old St. Nick.

But is the wait in the cold really worth the trouble?

“Yes,” said 8-year-old Courtney Barth without any hesitation as she sipped hot chocolate.

Maybe that’s a silly question.

“It’s an insurance policy,” said Chet Caruth of Lake Villa who brought his children Peyton and Paige to see the man in red. “In case we don’t transfer the information correctly.”

It seems most kids would rather talk to Santa in person, anyway.

But parents can benefit, too, when children believe in the magic man. After all, he only brings gifts to those on the good list. Those on the naughty list are left out.

“We always feed that to him,” said Aldo

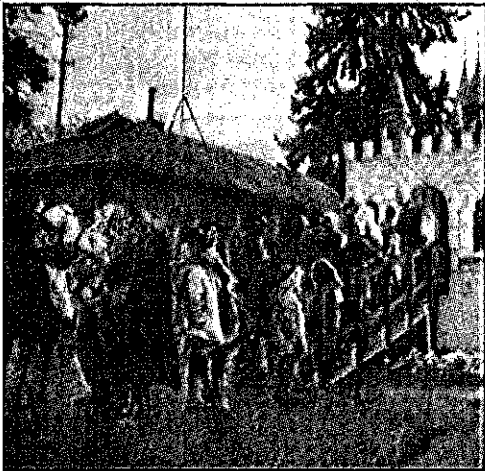

Kourtnei Kpernik, 8, of Antioch asks Santa for a Nintendo Wii and a dog at Santa’s Enchanted Castle in Antioch. Santa will visit the castle through Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Jimenez of Antioch, who came with his son Camden. “[Santa] is watching you no matter what month it is.”

Working at Santa’s Enchanted Castle as one of Santa’s helpers was Margarette Clarkin of Lake Villa.

Since she has kids who are all grown up, Clarkin said, the volunteer work offered the perfect chance to spend time with young children again.

“I’m a people person, so I got to get involved,” she said.

Families wait outside to see Santa Claus at Santa’s Enchanted Castle in Antioch.

For his part, the man of the hour said he never gets tired of the excited kids who wait to see him.

But, he added, the reindeer were a little troublesome on the ride down from the North Pole.

“One of the reindeer wanted to take the day off,” Santa said.

Each child in attendance at Santa’s Enchanted Castle had his or her own personal list of presents to tell the big guy.

But 6-year-old Andrew Utinans of Antioch probably gets the prize for the most creative. He wants a Christmas bell from Santa. And why is that?

“When I’m sick, I’ll ring the bell. And my dad will come help me,” he replied.

The Lake County Journals asks: What do you want for Christmas?

Volunteers honored at Volo Bog

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

INGLESIDE - Nearly 100 volunteers have been awarded for contributing their time to the Volo Bog State Natural Area and Moraine Hills State Park/McHenry Dam in 2008.

The Illinois Department of Natural Resources staff from Volo Bog State Natural Area presented the Friends of Volo Bog with a special 25-year anniversary plaque on Dec. 11.

Friends of Volo Bog founding member Esther Larson of Johnsburg accepted the award on behalf of the group.

Larson began volunteering for Volo Bog in the late 1970s and was on hand when a small group of volunteers organized to form the group in 1983.

After a 14-year hiatus, she returned and again became active as a volunteer.

The Friends of Volo Bog 25th anniversary award was just a part of the evening of celebration that honored volunteers who donated their services to Volo Bog State Natural Area and Moraine Hills State Park/McHenry Dam this year. Together they contributed 4,528 hours to these Illinois Department of Natural Resources sites.

Special Recognition was given to two individuals as Volunteer of the Year at their respective sites.

Nancy Bodinet of Lake Zurich was named 2008 Volunteer of the Year for Volo Bog State Natural Area. Bodinet contributed 163 hours to the site where she serves as a weekend docent, a monthly volunteer who greets visitors, answers questions about Volo Bog, assists with program registration and other tasks and operates the book and gift shop.

Bob Vetter of Grayslake was named 2008 Volunteer of the Year for Moraine Hills State Park/McHenry Dam. Vetter spent more than 200 hours at the complex. He coordinates the Native Gardeners - a team of 10 gardeners who tend to the site's Native Plant Demonstration Gardens - and is a founding member of the Friends of Moraine Hills State Park where he serves as treasurer and membership secretary.

Bodinet and Vetter received a certificate of appreciation and a Centurian Award plaque, which is presented to all volunteers contributing more than 100 hours a year.

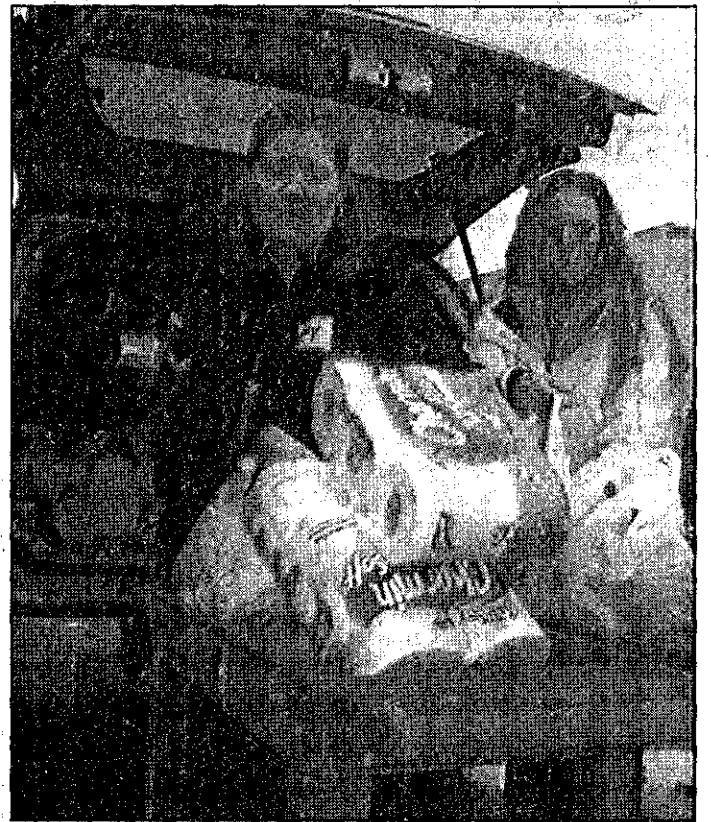

The following individuals also received certificates of appreciation and Centurian Award plaques for contributing more than 100 hours each in 2008: Bill Ewert of Ingleside; John Holmes of Lake Villa; Carl Krautwurst of Grayslake; Merry Miller of Lake Villa; Myrna Nelson of McHenry; Ray Purcell of Grayslake; Nancy Schletzelt of Crystal Lake; Carol Shaffer of Grayslake; Richard Wend of Spring Grove; and Neil Whitman of McHenry.

The following received certificates of appreciation for contributing 50 to 99 hours each to Volo Bog and/or Moraine Hills/McHenry Dam in 2008: Chris Brenner of Grayslake; Jerry Donahue of Mundelein; Nancy Doughty of Barrington; Mark Ginger of DesPlaines; Gail Goetze of McHenry; Pat Henschen of Lake Villa; Billie Kocal of Antioch; Kathy Kozack of Roselle; Esther Larson of McHenry; Yvette Liautaud of Streamwood; Meg Macdonald of Lake Bluff; Randy Schletzelt of Crystal Lake; Gary Seiler of Cary; Rebecca Tipples of Fox Lake; and Jan Wemple of Ingleside.

Thirty-two additional volunteers received certificates for contributing between 20 to 49 hours each, together providing a combined 851 hours to the two sites, with another 22 volunteers offering their help on smaller - often one-time - projects.

Children take time to give, not get

Annual holiday program aims to show kids value in helping others

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgr.com

LINDENHURST — Instead of focusing on what they want to get this holiday season, children at the Lindenhurst Early Childhood Center took time last week to focus on giving to those in need.

As a part of the center's 17th annual "Gift of Giving," children age 3 to 5 hand-packed more than 400 care boxes filled with food and toiletries that were distributed throughout the county.

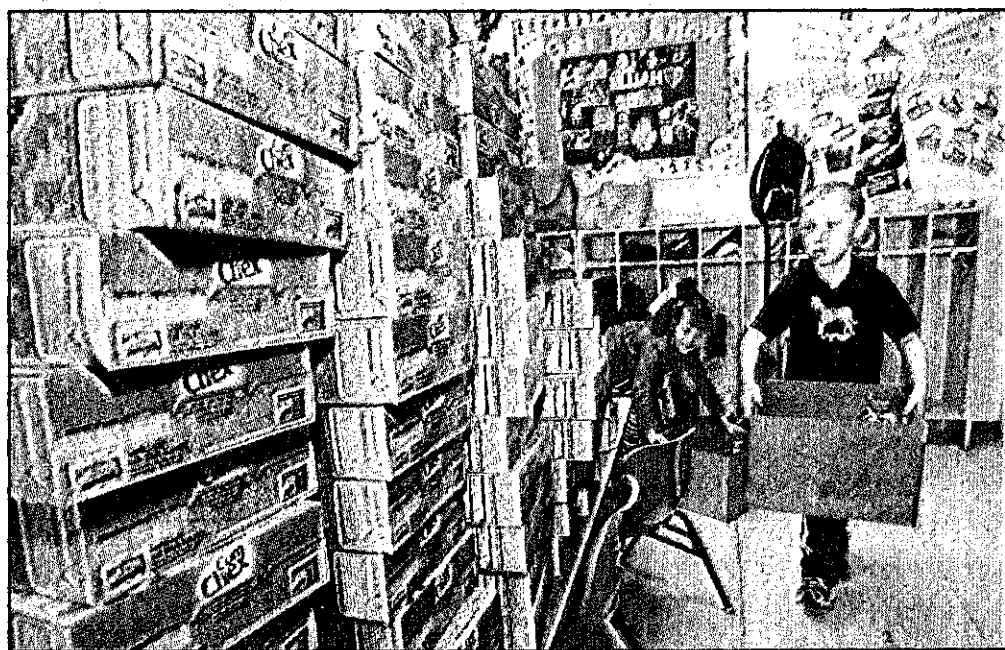

The message was not lost on kindergarten student Branden Nave as he packed a box with cereal and canned food.

"I'm giving these to people who don't have any," he said. "There are other people who don't have any stuff."

Packing the care boxes was just one part of the Gift of Giving program, program director Frank Davis said. The center also urged kids and their families to contribute to a clothing and toy drive, as well as an "Adopt an Angel" tree that includes the names of foster children and their wish-lists for the holidays.

The care boxes will be donated to locations across the county, Davis said, including the Open Arms Mission, Lake Villa Food Pantry, Avon Food Pantry, the Lake County Housing Authority and the Department of Children and Family Services.

Instead of making the program a one-time event for the children, Davis said, participation each year at the center helps students gain an appreciation for the importance of giving to those in need.

"That's really what it takes for kids to get into an event like this," he said. "Every time you do it, it cements the concept."

The children also received a visit from Santa Claus, who told the children that he was proud of their commitment to giving. Davis said the presence of Santa is a way to validate the efforts in the children's minds.

"What better spokesman for giving than Santa," he said.

Toni Levy, who teaches 3- and 4-year-old children at the center, said the young ages do not deter teachers from explaining the need to give to those less fortunate.

"We really do try to instill a spirit of giving, not just at Christmas but year-round," she said. "Even though they're so young, they really do get it because it's all hands-on."

Going into this year's program, Davis said he was worried giving levels would be down considering the state of the economy. But his fears were quickly quelled, he said, as the center will have no trouble meeting its goals.

"We have a solid belief system, and that really stands out in a year like this," Davis said. "That's the proof that this program has evolved into something really special."

Eli RuBert, Robyn Knight, Kendall Goldberg and Antony Kaspar push boxes of food and supplies along with kindergarten teachers Ann Janke and Angie Leone.

Carmel students pitch in

The Carmel Catholic High School Student Council recently sponsored the school's annual Fall Food Drive. Carmel students responded and donated more than 3,200 pounds of food to the Catholic Charities Food Pantry of Lake County. Prior to the food drive, pantry coordinators reported to Carmel Catholic that their shelves were depleted every 24 to 48 hours, a byproduct of the struggling economy. "We are always so proud of our students," said Kammie Cappell, a Carmel religion teacher and Student Council moderator, in a release. "When they understand that there is a need, they really work together to respond."

Helping people one shape at a time

By KATHY GRESEY
kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE – Libertyville-based architect Leslie Day is a squiggle.

That assessment was reinforced after she attended a second seminar hosted by Cynthia Rogers, who is president of Rogers & Associates, a training and development consulting firm in Third Lake.

"I found it to be fun and entertaining," Day said of the recent presentation that Rogers hosted for the Lake County Chamber of Commerce Women's Network Group at the University Center of Lake County in Grayslake. "Cynthia did a great job. She kept everyone's interest."

So, what is a squiggle?

The squiggle is one of five shapes, which also include a box, circle, triangle and rectangle, that can be used to determine a person's behavioral style, Rogers said, adding that a squiggle tends to be extremely creative, in addition to having other traits.

"No one shape has it all," Rogers said. "These are descriptions. They are not labels. This is a tool that can be used to build personal and professional relationships; it can be used for team building; to improve interviewing skills; for management, coaching. It's not that well known, but everybody loves it."

The assessment tool that Rogers presents is called Psycho-Geometrics. It was created about 30 years ago and is used around the world, according to www.psychogeometrics.com.

Rogers, who is one of 30 Psycho-Geometrics-licensed consultants in the world, uses the tool to help organizations and individuals identify behavioral and communication style differences that can get in the way of developing productive relationships, she said.

By identifying with one of the five geometric shapes, participants recognize their behavioral style and can learn how to "flex" their style to complement others. The tool also helps with self-awareness and can be used to determine why it is easier to build relationships with some people rather than others, Rogers said.

Want to know more?

• To learn more about Cynthia Rogers, call Rogers & Associates at 847-223-5914 or visit www.linkedin.com/in/cynthiarogers.

• Here are some comments from area residents who have seen her Psycho-Geometrics presentation. The comments are taken from follow-up surveys.

"I could have listened and participated for another hour, or so. I also heard others say the same thing."

Val Nelson

An OddBodd.com representative

"Very enlightening and provided valuable insights into my personality. The most accurate evaluation in which I've participated."

David Luckey

A computer professional

"Cynthia was phenomenal. People were really engaged and interested in the topic. This was due to her presentation style and personality."

Lisa Kleist

A human resources professional ers, Rogers said.

She tailors her presentation to fit an organization's need. The presentation to the women's group in Grayslake was about 40 minutes, while a more in-depth presentation can be four hours, she said.

Rogers develops leadership and development courses, and she is certified in Development Dimensions International; Achieve-Global; Myers Briggs Type Indicator; and Situational Leadership.

She said anyone can benefit from participating in the Psycho-Geometrics program.

"This is going to enhance your daily communications and interactions with others," she said. "As long as you're still fogging a mirror, you can use this knowledge."

Candace H. Johnson - lcjedit@nwnewsgroup.com

Working hard for the children

Susan Sieja, senior regional director for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, holds up a sign with the final donation total to show volunteers at Gurnee Mills at the close of the radiothon on Dec. 12.

Volunteers answer the phones during the last hour of the radiothon on Dec. 12. More than 30 volunteers were on hand at all times during the radiothon to answer calls and take pledges.

DJs "Ramblin' " Ray Stevens and Lisa Dent encourage listeners to donate money during the last hour of the radiothon on Dec. 12.

DJs help make goal for St. Jude hospital

Radio station US99.5 hosted its annual two-day, 27-hour Country Cares for Kids Radiothon to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital on Dec. 11 and 12 at Gurnee Mills.

The station raised more than $1.08 million by asking donors to pledge at least a dollar a day to become a Partner in Hope.

The goal was to raise enough money to keep the hospital open for one day - at a price of $1 million a day. Each donor received a long-sleeve T-shirt designed by a St. Jude patient that read "St. Jude Gives Hope."

Cristo Rey founder receives honor

President George Bush has bestowed the Presidential Citizens Medal upon the Rev. John Foley, founder of the Cristo Rey Network, an association of 22 schools that use an innovative work-study model to make a college-prep education possible for urban young people.

St. Martin de Porres High School in Waukegan is one of the 22 schools in the National Cristo Rey network.

"Foley is an outstanding example of service based on faith and compassion," said Charles Bolser, president of St. Martin de Porres, in a release.

"He has led a life of service to humanity by serving each person as an individual and enabling others to grow and become more fully human by following his example."

Foley, a Jesuit priest, served as president of the original Cristo Rey school in Chicago's Pilsen neighborhood from 1995 to 2002 and as executive chairman of the Cristo Rey Network since 2002.

Protecting the lake

To the Editor:
Illinois is a unique place. The Land of Lincoln is a transportation crossroads with a diverse economy that ranges from traditional manufacturing and agricultural to the newer high tech and financial service businesses.

Another important feature that makes Illinois unique is its natural resources, and there is perhaps no more important resource – natural or man-made – than Lake Michigan.

The lake is not only an economic and recreational resource, but it provides fresh water for millions of Illinois residents, as well as people in neighboring states.

There are few responsibilities for government at all levels more important than protecting Lake Michigan.

The North Shore Sanitary District, which includes more than 25 miles of shoreline in Lake County, works diligently to safeguard Lake Michigan from pollutants.

The district serves approximately 315,000 residents in several eastern Lake County communities including Winthrop Harbor, Zion, Beach Park, Waukegan, Gurnee, Park City, North Chicago, Great Lakes, Green Oaks, Lake Bluff, Lake Forest, Highwood, Bannockburn, Deerfield and Highland Park.

The district collects and conveys wastewater from sewer systems in these communities to treatment plants in Waukegan, Highland Park and Gurnee, all of which have been recently recognized by the National Association of Cleanwater Agencies for their excellent performance.

To help meet its mission of protecting our natural resources, the district is completing a storage basin in Lake Forest to retain 2 million gallons of wastewater during high-flow events or power outages, preventing it from entering the lake.

Stored wastewater in the Lake Forest basin will be pumped to the district's treatment facilities for removal of pollutants.

The district already has a similar 1 million gallon basin in North Chicago.

These storage basins are important tools in protecting Lake Michigan, and the district is planning to build two more – one in Lake Bluff and another Highland Park.

The district also is working with the Army Corps of Engineers to secure funding to protect a wastewater interceptor pipe along the lakefront in Highland Park from damage due to the erosion of the shoreline.

The pipe is intact and fully functional, but the district wants to act now to ensure that Lake Michigan is protected.

The sanitary district takes its responsibility to protect the lakefront quite seriously.

Lake Michigan belongs to everyone in the region, so we all must do our part to preserve this natural resource for the future.

Daniel Pierce
President of the North Shore Sanitary District

Saluting good citizens

To the Editor:
While it is difficult to find a bright spot in the midst of our nation's current economic turmoil, the continued good corporate citizenship of leading Chicago-area businesses is both an inspiration and a saving grace for nonprofit, social-service organizations like Zacharias Sexual Abuse Center in Gurnee.

The center's dedication to supporting local social-service organizations has helped assure Zacharias Sexual Abuse Center's ability to provide free medical, legal and counseling services to rape and incest survivors, as well as carrying out prevention education and advocacy programs throughout northern Illinois.

Like most 501c-3 organizations, Zacharias Sexual Abuse Center relies very heavily on the generous support of individuals, foundations and companies to fund its programs and services, which include providing – at no charge to survivors of sexual assault or abuse – comprehensive, confidential, services, such as medical and legal advocacy; emergency room and police sensitivity training; a 24-hour crisis hotline and crisis-intervention services; and counseling for both individuals and groups.

In addition, the center's community education department also provides prevention education to thousands of area school children each year.

So, it is with great admiration and gratitude that the Gurnee-based organization wishes to thank the following Chicago-area companies, which have stepped up to provide inspirational levels of support and uninterrupted funding – despite these financially unsettling times.

The companies are Abbott, American Hotel Register, Baxter Credit Union, Baxter Healthcare, Chicago Tribune, Coleman Cable Inc., Fifth Third Bank, First Midwest Bank, Fortune Brands Inc., Hollister Incorporated, Hospira, Medline Industries Inc., Mesirow Financial, Precision Plating, Stericycle, Trustmark Insurance Co., ULIN, WMS Gaming, and Wolters Kluwer.

For details, call Joe Howard, director of development at Zacharias Sexual Abuse Center, at 847-244-1187, ext. 23, or visit www.ZachariasCenter.org.

High-speed rail system could put nation on right track

Initiatives could be a benefit to entire country

John S. Matijevich

One of the key elements of revitalizing the American economy is to find ways to bring back meaningful jobs to Americans.

The downward trend of the economy can be traced to the outsourcing of jobs, and we must reverse that course by concentrating on employment of Americans that can be redistributed toward a vibrant economy.

Since the changeover from a strong manufacturing base, we have been reduced to a service-oriented economy.

That doesn't cut it if we are to reach our goal to ratchet up the middle and lower classes of society.

As we admonish government not to spend beyond its means, how can we expect ordinary wage-owners to revive the economy at wages that have been diminished, or even abolished?

In watching President-elect Barack Obama - both during the election and since his victory - I have been impressed by his knowledge of American history and his high regard for Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

That may become worthy since President Roosevelt used drastic measures during the worst of America's economic times to provide jobs and confidence for Americans.

With all of this in mind, I believe that Obama is on the right track for targeting infrastructure needs as one of the ways to jump-start our staggering economy.

In the Depression years, many worthwhile public works jobs were taken on, which helped to restore dignity to American workers.

The Hoover Dam project is one example of visionary engineering ingenuity that brought employment and at the same time satisfied a vital regional need that spurred the economy.

If there is one infrastructure need that should be addressed that could have a long-term benefit, it would be changing the country's nearly obsolete railroad system into a visionary high-speed rail system.

I became convinced of its value in the early 1970s when an Illinois Republican legislator, Paul Randolph, did everything that he could to promote high-speed rail for the Midwest.

Paul was way ahead of his time, but the time for high-speed rail may be nearing.

Remember, his concern came after the North Shore Railroad abandoned its electric rail service between Chicago and Milwaukee.

The closure of that line was a sad end to a viable commuter transportation system.

The Skokie Valley line route highlighted the Electroliner, probably the country's most modern, streamlined, swift electric mode of local transportation.

In those days, it was the closest thing to high-speed rail that there was.

Recently, I read that, in a bipartisan move, Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., introduced a bill titled the High Speed Rail Act of 2008.

It would provide a $5.4 billion, six-year bond program to repair rail corridors destined toward high-speed rail systems.

The Midwest is planned as one of 10 such rail corridors.

A Midwest Regional Rail Initiative has been studied for some years, so Congressional approval of such a bill could move high-speed rail from the concept stage to the reality stage in the years ahead.

Linking cities like Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Detroit, Indianapolis, and Minneapolis with high-speed rail could be an economic boon to the Midwest.

Imagine, a trip to Detroit from Chicago would take about an hour - less time than it takes us to drive from the north and northwest suburbs to Chicago.

It always has baffled me that we can send somebody to the moon, yet we take snails' paces to improve our local transportation systems.

I have been told in jest, but it's not funny, that the automobile, oil, and union lobbies never supported anything that interfered with the interstate highway system.

As far as I am concerned, after we start regional high-speed rail systems, the next step should be cross-country, high-speed rail alongside the interstate highway system.

Let's get our rail system into the next century. And help the economy, too.

You can color me clueless

I cannot pass a cosmetics counter without stopping, and last week was no exception. However, I'd only stopped to check out my new glasses in a flattering mirror stationed atop the counter, not to purchase anything. But within three seconds, a sales associate, wearing enough ultramarine eye shadow to cover an entire member of Blue Man group, invaded my space.

"What are WE looking for today?" she chirped.

"We are," I muttered, "I mean 'I am' looking for um, um, um (what the heck was I looking for?)... lipstick!"

"What color do you have in mind?" she said, sizing me up.

"Blue," I said, so overwhelmed by her eye shadow that I could think of nothing else.

"Blue?" she said.

"I mean red," I stammered.

"By red, do you mean bitersweet, brick, burgundy, cardinal, cerise, cherry, claret, crimson, fuchsia, garnet, geranium, magenta, poppy, rose, ruby or russet?"

"Something un-Bozo-like," was all I could think of.

"Pretty Poppy is our best-selling red," she said.

"Then I'll try that."

"Pretty Poppy has a bluish undercoat. 'I so love blue,' she sighed, her shadowed eyes tearing up.

"Then I'll try Pretty Poppy," I said, again.

"NO!" she shouted. "You cannot wear anything bluish with your skin tone; you'll look all lips! You need something with a beige undercoat." Obviously, Old Blue Eyes here thought the Angelina Jolie look wrong for the likes of me.

"OK," I surrendered. "Show me something beige-y undercoated."

"Do you want amber, bronze, chestnut, cocoa, copper, ecru, puce, sepia, terracotta, umber, toast, khaki or taupe?"

"Taupe," was all I could say. I'd forgotten the rest of the list.

"Tedious taupe," she mumbled under her breath. "The woman wants tedious taupe," she rambled on. I could almost hear, "tsk, tsk," as she went through drawers of lipsticks and came up with something she tossed at me. This is called, "Tried and True Taupe."

I tried on Tried and True Taupe. I looked as if I'd put on paste.

"That's lovely on you," she said, "but what will look even lovelier is if you balance it with blue eye shadow."

I opened my paste-colored lips wide enough for the words to unfortunately tumble out, "What shades of blue do you have?"

"Azure, beryl, cerulean, cobalt, cornflower, indigo, navy, royal, teal and turquoise," she said, her blue-shadowed eyeballs going from round to dollar-sign shaped.

Zooey Deschanel and Jim Carrey star in "Yes Man," a PG-13 rated comedy that is directed by Peyton Reed.

'Yes Man' a no go

Comedy with Jim Carrey brings back old expressions

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
jeffreysthuff@jeffwest.com

Jim Carrey attempts a return to his zany comic roots in "Yes Man," which could be a remake or sequel to "Liar Liar," except that it isn't funny.

Released 11 years ago, "Liar Liar" wasn't exactly the pinnacle of Carrey's comic career, but he was in his rubber-bones, elastic-face prime and the movie was often funny in spite of its formulaic set up.

The premise for "Yes Man" is nearly the same.

In "Liar Liar," Carrey couldn't tell a lie. In "Yes Man" he cannot say no.

In the first movie Carrey was compelled to tell the truth because of his son's birthday wish. There is no supernatural compulsion in "Yes Man," although Carrey's character, Carl Allen, seems to think so, which makes no sense.

"Yes Man" is based on the loosest possible sense on a memoir by British journalist Danny Wallace who decided to spend a year accepting all invitations and opportunities after a stranger on a bus advised him to "say yes more." This, or even a curse, would have worked better than the filmmakers' idea: Carl becomes more agreeable after a session with a bombastic motivational speaker (Terence Stamp), whose patter includes, "I want you to invite yes into your life. Because if you do, it will RSVP 'yes.'"

Before this, Carl is a grump who has shut himself off from life after his divorce.

He ignores the friends he already has and freezes out people who want to become his friend, particularly Norman (Rhys Darby), the manager at the bank where Carl works as a loan officer.

And if you think there is potential hilarity in a loan officer who must say yes to everything, you are not on the same wavelength as the filmmakers, because they do almost nothing with this possibility.

Mostly director Peyton Reed ("Bring It On") and the writers (Nicholas Stoller, Jarrad Paul and Andrew Mogel) step aside and let Carrey do what he did so well 10 to 15 years ago, run around and act crazy.

Carrey is talented enough that some of his hijinks are bound to amuse, but much of the time we are watching a middle-aged man hoping to recapture the glory of his youth.

"Yes Man" is Carrey's cinematic substitute for a little red sports car. Fortunately for Carrey and for us, Carl's newfound acquiescence allows him to meet Allison, who is played by Zooey Deschanel.

Allison is a punk rock singer who also teaches jogging and photography - at the same time. Allison learned to say yes to life without the intervention of a motivational speaker, so her reactions toward the end of the film seem peevish.

But if she didn't act that way, the plot wouldn't reach the "boy loses girl" point.

Gaps in story logic aside, Deschanel is far and away the best part of the movie.

Her deadpan sense of humor

(also a highlight in "Elf") makes her a natural foil to Carrey's screwball antics.

She also makes a credible rock singer.

If Deschanel were around 30 years ago, she could have given Debbie Harry and Pat Benatar competition.

Although several of Reed's pictures ("Down With Love," "The Break-Up") don't receive the credit they deserve, he doesn't maintain a consistent tone in "Yes Man."

An innocuous mood is spoiled by a tasteless encounter with Carl's elderly neighbor (Fionnula Flanagan) that seems thrown in to compete with the R-rated raunch of Judd Apatow's crew.

One of the funnier moments, when Carrey tries to talk a suicide jumper off a ledge, goes one joke too far beyond reality.

While a steadier script would have helped, "Yes Man" offers nothing to challenge Carrey's comic skills.

He did all this before, and better, in the '90s. Maybe Carrey didn't want a challenge; maybe he wanted an easy box-office hit. Chances are, though, most of his old fans will be saying no to "Yes Man."

After 25 years, Foxworthy still biggest redneck

By JANA THOMPSON
jthompson@nwnewsgroup.com

Can you believe Jeff Foxworthy has been in the funny business for 25 years?

Time flies when you're having fun.

The man who built an empire reveling in the foibles of the trailer park set is still down to earth and happy to field silly questions about his omnipresent mustache.

He's a quarter of the outrageously successful Blue Collar Comedy Tour foursome. The tour was filmed for three concert movies, sold loads of DVDs and spun off a sketch show a few years ago.

Foxworthy is still firing off redneck one-liners in comedy clubs around the country.

Fans also can catch him as host of Fox's "Are You Smarter Than A 5th Grader?" where adult contestants try to remember their grade-school lessons for cash (the game show airs 7 p.m. Fridays).

Also for the kiddos, Foxworthy has written children's books: "Dirt on My Shirt," available now, and "Silly Street," coming Feb. 24.

Despite Foxworthy's good nature, he left us on our own to find a spelling for "whitchadidja." Can a fifth-grader spell that?

Q Well, of course, the obvious question is are you smarter than a fifth-grader?

It's funny. I kind of thought I was destined to be the redneck guy. For years, people would point and go "You might be a redneck!" Now they say "Are you smarter than a fifth-grader?"

The answer is no.

The kids on the show were trying to get me to take the test to play for charity. I said "It's better that everyone just thinks Mr. Jeff is an idiot than to prove them right."

Q What is the most redneck thing you've ever done?

No one has ever asked me that. Wow. There's so many to choose from. When I was a teenager, I broke my nose one time jumping out the passenger window of a truck onto one of those big hay bales on a dare. They looked like they were soft. They said at the hospital, "Why did you do this?" I said, "Because he bet me I wouldn't."

I did streak through a high school assembly once. My buddy and I wore a ski mask and football helmet. We forgot our numbers were painted on the side.

Q At your Comedy Central roast, they gave you a lot of trouble about your mustache. Do you ever go mustache-less?

I've been married 24 years, and she's never seen me without it. I don't even know if I have a lip under there.

Q If you weren't a comedian, what job would you have?

I've always liked advertising. It's kind of like comedy, a little misdirection. ... I tell people I'm two decisions away from hanging drywall.

Q You've written books and starred on TV and had greeting cards and video slot machines made using your likeness. What Foxworthy product is next?

I just did my first children's book this year ("Dirt on My Shirt"), thinking it would be easy. Because of "Are You Smarter Than A 5th Grader," every kid knows who I am. It ended up probably being the hardest thing I've ever written.

The second book will be out in February, called "Silly Street."

Q Will there ever be another Blue Collar Comedy Tour?

I hope so. You know, it's probably the most fun thing I've ever done. But Larry [the Cable Guy] and Ron [White] never made any money before that. Now they're headlining.

They don't want to split it four ways. I tell Larry, "Once you get that four-wheeler paid off ..."

Q At what point in life did you realize you were funny?

I knew it early on. If you go back and talk to people who knew me then, nobody is surprised. I used to save my allowance and buy Bill Cosby and Flip Wilson albums. I'd go to school and do their stuff and get in trouble. I moved a lot when I was little, and I found it was a great way to make friends. When I was little, I could disarm my mom and dad [when I got in trouble]. My youngest daughter is that way.

Q Who makes you laugh?

My best friend is the most humorous person I know. And you couldn't pay him a billion dollars to go up there. ... My brother makes me laugh. My wife makes me laugh. ... I like to sit in the back of a [comedy] club. I'm still a fan. Laughter doesn't make your problems go away, but it's a release valve.

I remember when I first was doing amateur night. Steven Wright came and found me in the back and said, "You should be doing this for a living." Later, when I ran into him, I told him, "You won't remember this, but what you said to me gave me courage to quit my job."

You can't teach someone to be funny.

Common's music has begun to resemble his name.

"UMC" features terrible work from the increasingly unreliable Neptunes.

On "Sex 4 Sugar," it sounds like the guys spent most of their time finding an intrusive keyboard setting. "What a World" is the sort of synthetic funk Williams and Hugo dash off between stops on the N.E.R.D. tour bus.

"What are you wearing?" I asked, hoping not to emulate her.

"Oh, you like mine?" she said.

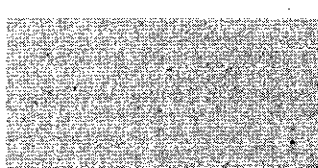

"It's called 'Bluebird of Happiness,' and it's our latest shade. It will enliven those taupe-y lips. Here, let me apply a sample."

I stood there frozen as she painted my eyelids. When she got through, she pointed toward the mirror and said, "Don't we look pretty?"

In my opinion, "we" looked like Smurfs.

Nevertheless, I gave her my credit card, took my purchases and ran before she could come after me with a giant wand of blue mascara.

Let the Party Season Begin!

Whether you're planning a banquet, small gathering or an intimate dinner, entertaining during the holidays can be festive, fun and satisfying.

Yes, you heard that right. It can be fun! Entertaining can also be easy and streamlined when you plan festive, flavorful, people-pleasing dishes that can go from the oven to the table in one step. Preparing, baking and serving in the same beautiful dish cuts down on preparation time and clean up efforts and helps you to enjoy your own party.

With elegantly coordinating tableware, your culinary talents are showcased to best advantage. Combining form and function delivers tableware that's not only appealing but durable and multi-purpose. And the porcelain bakeware moves from kitchen to oven to table for time-saving one-dish meals that are just right for the holidays.

Consider serving up Orange-Rosemary Baked Chicken, which features citrus-and-herb scented pieces of roast chicken that taste like sunshine in the south of France. Presented at the table in a beautiful CorningWare roasting dish, the deliciously burnished poultry becomes the centerpiece of a simply elegant dinner. Or try Roasted Vegetable Medley, which blends colorful, caramelized vegetables. This medley delivers deep flavor, infused with garlic and herb aromas, all achieved through no-fuss roasting in a smart-white porcelain dish that's the perfect foil to the colors offered by nature's bounty.

Orange-Rosemary Baked Chicken

Serves 4

- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon grated orange zest
- 1 tablespoon fresh rosemary or 1 teaspoon dried
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash white pepper
- 1 whole chicken (3 1/2 pound), quartered
- Orange segments for garnish

In medium bowl, whisk together all ingredients except chicken. Place chicken in lightly sprayed or oiled baking dish. Cover chicken with mari-nade. Cover and refrigerate two hours, turning once. Allow chicken to come to room temperature before baking.

Preheat oven to 350°F. Bake chicken, skin side up, basting with juices once or twice until no longer pink in center, about 1 hour. Serve in baking dish, garnished with orange segments.

Roasted Vegetable Medley

Serves 4

- 1 green pepper, cut into 1 1/2-inch slices
- 1 red pepper, cut into 1 1/2-inch slices
- 1 medium-size sweet potato, cut into wedges
- 2 carrots, cut into 1/4-inch slices
- 1 small cauliflower, cut into 3/4-inch pieces
- 1 sweet onion, cut into wedges
- 6 whole garlic cloves, peeled
- 3 tablespoons olive oil, divided
- 1 tablespoon fresh rosemary, chopped, or 1/2 teaspoon dried
- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
- 3/4 teaspoon salt, divided
- 2 zucchini, peeled, cut into 3/4-inch pieces

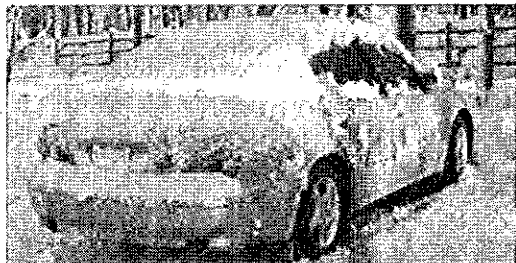

- 6 white mushrooms, quartered
- 1 tablespoon fresh basil, chopped

Preheat oven to 400°F. In large bowl, place green and red pepper, sweet potato, carrots, cauliflower, onion and garlic with 2 tablespoons oil, rosemary, vinegar and 1/2 teaspoon salt; toss thoroughly to coat. Spread loosely in oiled baking dish; roast until vegetables are almost tender, about 20 minutes, stirring once. Toss zucchini and mushrooms with remaining oil and salt; add to baking dish, stirring to distribute evenly. Roast 10 to 15 minutes more, until all vegetables are tender and fragrant. Remove from oven; toss fresh basil with vegetables and serve in baking dish.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such requesting you to send money prior to making a purchase, or offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them. These checks are FAKE and YOU will be held liable for repaying the funds to the bank.

It is usually a good idea to avoid transactions overseas or from out of state. To protect your self, shop locally.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands, Nigeria & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious.
